

Abstract

5

Method of Standardizing Character Information in Electronic Documents

Character information is standardized in electronic documents. By comparing a font used in an electronic document and a font within a target font set to be provided as a replacement font, a font comparison table referred to during actual font replacement is automatically generated. The font comparison table is presented to the user, in order for the user to amend errors in the comparison table. The font in the electronic document is replaced based on the amended font comparison table.

10

00533825 003060